U of M Crookston Business Department Inks Articulation Agreements with Minnesota State Community and Technical College and Anoka Technical College

By Itolleks on Wednesday, January 2, 2013 Several new articulation agreements have been implemented by the Business Department at the University of Minnesota, Crookston. Agreements were signed with Minnesota State Community and Technical College in Moorhead, Minn., and Anoka Technical College in Anoka, Minn. These bachelor of science degree options at the U of M, Crookston are available to students both online and on-site.

Graduates with an associate of science degree in business from Minnesota State Community and Technical College (MSCTC) would have the option to pursue a bachelor of science degree in business management from the U of M, Crookston. For those earning an associate of applied science degree in business management sales, and marketing could also consider the bachelor of science in business management for the Crookston campus.

For graduates earning an associate of applied science degree in accounting from MSCTC, the option to pursue a bachelor of science in accounting at the U of M, Crookston would be an option.

Students graduating with an associate of science degree in either diesel equipment technology or carpentry have the option to pursue a bachelor of manufacturing management at the U of M, Crookston.

For graduates earning an associate of applied science degree in accounting from Anoka Technical College, pursuing a bachelor of science in accounting at the U of M, Crookston would be an option.

Articulation agreements are formal arrangements transferring a defined set of academic credits between an academic program of one institution, usually a two-year post-secondary institution, to a program within a college or campus of the University of Minnesota system in order to fulfill general education or program requirements. Benefits of an articulation agreement include a reduced chance of retaking the same coursework; and the opportunity to move from an associate degree to a bachelor's degree at the U of M, Crookston.
